Four Streams Ethics, Integrity, and Transparency:

Four Streams Code of Ethics is defined by the greater mission of showing every individual they have dignity and worth. Behavior should contribute toward fulfilling this mission, whether financial or organizational. Four Streams seeks to serve the greater good of employees and students by conducting all levels of business above reproach. As a for-profit organization, Four Streams Coaching is not required to disclose financial information.

Therefore, Four Streams is committed to:

- utmost integrity in work, which is modeled by honest practices in all areas of business
- upholding the letter and spirit of the law
- taking responsibility for their actions and considering the effects on others
- striving to create a sustainable economic and social environment

As an ICF Accredited provider, our organization adheres to and emphasizes the International Coaching Federation Code of Ethics. The ICF Code of ethics describes the ICF core values, ethical principles, and standards of behavior for all ICF professionals. Meeting these ethical standards of behavior is the first of the ICF core coaching competencies. You can read more about the ICF Code of Ethics here.

Additionally, Four Streams School of Coaching commits to acting with integrity and transparency. We hold ourselves and our participants to the highest level of integrity and strive to be as transparent as possible by explicitly stating measures being taken to provide programs in an ethical manner. We do not believe in using manipulative or dishonest sales tactics and strive to provide a safe and ethical sales process. Further, we work to provide fair and equitable pricing for all programs to ensure access and quality of coaching education.
